

In-House Classes

Many organizations prefer APICS Education offered at their sites to assist their employees in receiving premium training. In-house training is typically more cost effective while it increases employee participation.

APICS Santa Clara Valley Chapter has provided in-house instruction for numerous Bay Area Companies. Employers who encourage and support their employees in obtaining their CPIM or CSCP designations:

- Enjoy a skilled workforce that is better prepared, more knowledgeable, more capable, more productive, and able to contribute to a successful bottom line
- Validate the knowledge and skill set of their employees leading to productivity improvement in the workplace
- Achieve competitive advantage in the marketplace through a highly trained, confident, and productive workforce.

The APICS SCVC offers in-house training in a variety of formats and educational course options:

- CPIM - a five course, 130 hour program designed to prepare students for CPIM Certification Examinations
- CSCP - a four module course, 40 hour program, designed to prepare students for CSCP Certification Examinations
- Lean Manufacturing - a seven series workshop, 28 hour program, designed to start your company on the path to implementing Lean.
- In addition to the above, the Santa Clara Valley Chapter has several specialized courses, and can modify the above courses to fit unique situations and/or applications.

Benefits of In-House Courses:

- Your company pays one fee
- Class size can vary, but typically is limited to 30 students
- Classes can be scheduled
 - During work or after hours
 - On weekend or weekdays
- Students enjoy the co-worker involvement plus students can work with each other on course teachings
- Company issues can be discussed pertaining to the Body of Knowledge
